

Events

Winners get help from the Internet

By AIMIE PARDAS
aimie@nstp.com.my

WITH information from the Internet, the grand-prize winner of the Win Diana Lim contest needed only 15 minutes to come up with the winning design. Interesting and creative: The winning design submitted by prize winner of the Win Diana Lim.

A Muramasa contest needed only 15 minutes to come up with the winning design. The "sleek and light" concept sword, hence included a drawing of a leaping panther and a woman. Muramasa is the nickname for across, she incorporated a picture of a sword into his design. And as Faizul Insani had computer which the company using a laptop, then creatively learnt Japanese, he included the added in the "Muramasa" logo to word "Muramasa" written in

The winner, marketing give the design that winning Japanese. manager Diana Lim Ai Siok, edge.

Faizul Insani said he would said she used the Internet to look for information concerning the unit of the PC-UM10 Muramasa printer, to his sibling.

Muramasa product and found notebook, a briefcase-cum-notebook. Another second-prize winner, were artist Mohd Razali Mohd by Sharp-Roxy Sales and Services The first from a series of out that Sharp was marketing notebook carrier and a CD-ROM systems engineer Wan Luen Seng, Raub, student Ng Chung Yee and Company (M) Sdn Bhd. The slim notebook computers by the new product as a sleek and drive. based his design on sleekness and teacher Norzulailah Ramlan. Each contestants had to answer four Sharp, the Muramasa is light notebook. of them took home an inkjet multiple-choice questions on the designed to offer real notebook

One of the second-prize winners, school teacher Faizul word "Muramasa" is in blue with printer. As for the 10 third-prize masa" as creatively as possible. compromising performance. At with a design which focused on Insani Ahmad, also leverage the a gold outline to represent what As for the 10 third-prize masa" as creatively as possible. compromising performance. At those two elements and por-Internet for information on the the product means: special, useful winners, each received a two-in- Prizes for the grand and second 16.6 millimetres thick and trayed the side view of the slim Muramasa notebook. and valuable. And he, too, would one briefcase-cum-notebook prize winners were given away by weighing 1.31 kilograms, the product into the word He discovered that Mura- give his prize away carrier while 50 consolation-prize Sharp-Roxy's managing director notebook's body is made of with a retractable keyboard.

Congratulations: Yasumoto (fourth from right) together with the jubilant prize winners and representatives.

The contest was organised by Kiyoshi Yasumoto at its office in Shah Alam last week.

Other second-prize winners Computimes, with prizes sponsored in Shah Alam last week. The first from a series of were artist Mohd Razali Mohd by Sharp-Roxy Sales and Services The first from a series of Sharp, the Muramasa is designed to offer real notebook product and write the word "Muramasa" as creatively as possible. compromising performance. At As for the 10 third-prize masa" as creatively as possible. compromising performance. At winners, each received a two-in- Prizes for the grand and second 16.6 millimetres thick and one briefcase-cum-notebook prize winners were given away by weighing 1.31 kilograms, the carrier while 50 consolation-prize Sharp-Roxy's managing director notebook's body is made of with a retractable keyboard.

electronic organiser each.

